JEAN PAGE ABELL SMITHFIELD, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Theta Delta Pi; President of Senior Class, 1925; President's Forum, 1925; Pan-Hellenic Council, 1925; I. R. S., 1923-25; Blue Ridge Delegate, 1924; Assistant Editor of Annual, 1924; Winner of Athletic Sweater, 1924; Winner of "S." 1923; Head of Baseball, 1924; Senior Marshal, 1923; Fire Captain, 1923; Basketball Team, 1923-25; Basketball Varsity, 1923; Baseball, 1922-24; Hockey Team, 1922-25

Given: Jean Abell— To prove that Jean is "able."

- She is known by her sobriquet as "able." (Consult Mr. Heath.)
 She was the guiding star of the seniors.

- She has acted well her part by giving sympathy, laughter, and love.
 She can be continually "dated up" in addition to her scholastic interests.

HELEN CONSTANCE ALLEN JAMAICA, BRITISH WEST INDIES

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

House President, 1923-24; Student Council, 1923-24; Circulation Manager of Salemite Staff, 1923-24; Secretary of Class, 1923-24; Hikers, 1923-25.

The popular idea that preachers' daughters are the worst in the world surely cannot be applied to "Connie." We often wonder how she gets her lessons up sometimes a whole week in advance. Preparedness is her slogan. Constance surely is not going back to Jamaica for good—because we need her here. Her name is not a misnomer, for she is always constant!

ELLA ASTON LEBANON, VA.

Candidate for Voice Diploma

Beta Beta Phi; Song Leader, Class, 1925; Treasurer Giee Club, 1925; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1925; Virginia Club, 1922-25; Y. W. C. A. Choir, 1922-25; President Junior Class, 1924; Fresidents' Forum, 1924; Glee Club, 1924; Chief Marshal, 1924; Le Cercle Francais, 1924; Junior Representative, MacDowell Club, 1924; Hikers, 1923.

Ella has been "standing at the portal" for five successive years. The time hasn't seemed long to her many friends. A cheery smile, a winning personality, a red dress, and a tune hummed from morn till night. That's Ella!

FLORA BINDER MOUNT AIRY, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Editor-in-Chief "Salemite," 1924-25; Class Poet, 1925; "Salemite" Stuff, 1920-25; History Club, 1922-25; Acting President History Club, 1923-24; President's Forum, 1923-25; Class Honors, 1920-23; Bluc Ridge Delegate, 1924; Le Cercle Francais, 1922-25; Walking Club, 1920-25; Managing Editor "Salemite," 1923-24; Program Chairmaa History Club, 1924-25.

Scene—Her christening.
Dramatis Personæ—Her fairy godmother and three fairies.

First Fairy: "She shall be a classical genius. (Behold her literary ability!)

Second Fairy: "She shall be a scholar supreme." (Visit her classes.)

Third Fairy: "She shall have inexhaustible energy." (See the Salemite.)

AGNES EUGENIA CARLTON WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

"Salemite" Staff, 1924-25; "Sights and Insights" Staff, 1925; Honor Roll, 1923-24; History Club, 1922-25; Le Cercle Francais, 1922-23.

How Room 124 has been metamorphosized since Agnes has occupied it! Just look into that artistically arranged room, and you'll certainly agree that Agnes would be a good home-maker. That's just a suggestion. And have you seen her stand in froot of the mirror until her hat is on at the proper angle? It may be thirty-five degrees, but our knowledge of geometry is too limited to ascertain.

LOIS CROWELL CONCORD, N. C.

Candidate for Voice Diploma

Alpha Phi Kappa, Pierrette Players, 1924-25; Pan-Hellenic Council, 1924-25; "Sights and Insights" Staff, 1924-25; "Salemite" Staff, 1922-23; Senior Marshal, 1922-23; Sudwat Council, 1923-24; Glee Club, 1922-24; Basketball Team, 1922-23; Hikers, 1922-23; Class Song Leader, 1923-24; Class Cheer Leader, 1922-23; Y. W. C. A. Choir, 1922-24.

If all hig sisters sent us as accomplished little sisters as Ruth did, then Salem would hubble with enthusiasm, energy, cheerfulness, and song, topped with the generosity of all of these. The poetic was not left out of her nature, for Rosa and Lois send out daily editions from the land of jingles. The muses of song and of poetry have a dual task in her make-up. These, and her golden curls, and winsome dimples, make her truly lovable.

LOIS LEE CULLER KERNERSVILLE, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Class Historian, 1925; Student Council, 1925; "Salemite" Staff, 1924-25; H. R. S., 1924-25; History Club, 1923-25; Le Cercle Francais, 1923; Societas Scientiarum, 1924-25.

That "wise crack" who said that beauty and brains do not go together is denied by Lois. She has superlative ability, especially when it comes to getting along with men teachers. Her favorite pastime is spent in going to the postoffice to receive odd letters from Carolina.

ALICE CABELL DUNKLEE WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Delta Sigma Delta; Vice-President I. R. S., 1924-25; Marshal, 1922-23; Class Cheer Leader, 1922-23; "Salemite" Staff, 1922-23; "Sights and Insights" Staff, 1922-23; Le Cercle Francais, 1922-25; History Club, 1922-23.

Behold "Dunk!" Small in quantity, but great in quality! But remember, "the most precious articles come in small packages," Alice thought she could leave us last year, but our Alma Mater called her back and Randolph-Macon was the loser. She holds a charm for Davidson, 'cause invitations are never lacking.

DAISY LEE GLASGOW WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Business Manager "Sights and Insights," 1924-25; Assistant Business Manager "Sights and Insights," 1923-24; "Salemite" Staff, 1923-24; History Club, 1923-25; Class Honors, 1922-24; "The Pierrette Players," 1924-25; Wearer of "W" and Wearer of "S," Hikers, 1921-25.

If you desire knowledge on any phase of history from the creation to the present day, just ask Daisy Lee, and she can give you an exhaustless discourse on any topic. And what would the staff do without her to manage its financial and economic interests? Should her scholastic and business abilities fail to secure for her a position in life, she might win a reputation as a jitney driver from future juniors preparing for "prom."

SOPHIA WILLS HALL BARBER, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Science

Second Vice-President of Student Government. 1924-25; Student Government Representative, 1923-24; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1922-23; Treasurer of Athletic Association, 1932-24; Treasurer of Class, 1922-23; Class Busketball Team, 1922-23; Track Team, 1922-24; Winner of Runnung, Broad, and Standing Jumps, 1922; Winner of Standing Broad Jump, 1923-24; Class Hockey Team, 1923-24; Hockey Varsity, 1923; Captain Basketball Team, 1922-24; Baseball Varsity, 1922-24 Tennis Tournament, 1922-24; Wearer of St.; Winner of Athletic Sweater, 1924; Walking Club, 1922-24; History Club, 1923-24; Le Cercla Francals, 1923-24; Blue Ridge Delegate, 1923.

Versatility—that's Sophia! She's athletic, she's musical, she's scientific, she's witty. Tripping the light fantastic toe is the joy of her life. A whirlwind of energy, but it doesn't get her to class at the right time. If everyone were as conscientious as Sophia, Salem wouldn't need "Stee Gees."

MARGARET ELIZABETH HANNER WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Business Manager of "Salemite." 1924-25; "Salemite" Staff, 1923-24; Honor Roll, 1922-23; Le Cercle Francais, 1923; History Club, 1924-25; Societas Scientiarum, 1925.

Margaret's name is written in italics on the mathematical register. She not only "knows what she knows," but she is able to apply he mathematical knowledge practically by managing the Salemite financially. Thus perseverance, together with sincerity and absolute dependability, lead to success in any undertaking.

FRANCES PAULINE HAWKINS MARION, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

President Athletic Association, 1925; Student Council, 1925; President Forum, 1925; I. R. S., 1924; Secretary of Class, 1925; Stage Director Dramatic Club, 1925; History Club, 1924-25; Basketball Varsity, 1924; Class Basketball Team, 1924-25; Hockey Team, 1924-25; Class Baseball Team, 1924-25; Walking Club, 1925; Wearer of "S"; Societas Scientiarum, 1925.

If one is blue and lonesome a dose of Polly's laughter is the cure. Contagion isn't the name! Polly isn't backward in athletics—in fact, she is forward for the senior team. Her speech isn't uttered Poll-parrot fashion, even though she is a Polly. To he more serious, Polly is a valuable member of our Council.

MARY MILDRED HILL

LEXINGTON, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

President of Student Government, 1925; Honorary Member of Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1925; President's Forum, 1925; Secretary Student Council; Student Council; Student Council; Representative, 1923; Class Treasurer, 1924; History Club, 1923-25; Hockey Team, 1923; I. R. S. Board, 1925; Home Economics Club, 1925.

Has she ability? Just witness her achievements along every line of endeavor! Has she friends? Try to count them. The sea breezes, a la swimming pool, do not affect Mary's permanent wave. Our Stee Gee President possesses the qualities we all admire and respect, and the year 1924-25, under her leadership, shall always be remembered as the best and most progressive in the annals of Student Government at Salem.

KATIE RUTH HOLSHOUSER BLOWING ROCK, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Student Council, 1924-25; "Salemite" Staff, 1923-25; Advertising Manager "Sights and Insights," 1924-25; Assistant Business Manager "Sights and Insights," 1923-24; Had of Hockey, 1923-24; Hockey Varsity, 1923-24; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1924-25; House President, Main Hall, 1922-23; Volleyball Team, 1922-25; Hockey Team, 1922-24; Tennis Squad, 1922-24.

Who came from the "Land of the Sky" to go to Salem?

"Katie did."

Who took time to be optimistic?

"Katie did."

Who joined good nature and good sense? "Katie did."

Who made things worth doing at all worth doing well?

"Katie did."

KATE LUELLA HUNTER WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Science

I. R. S., 1925; "Salemite" Staff, 1924-25; "Sights and Insights" Staff, 1924-25; Societas Scientarum, 1924-25; Le Cercle Francais, 1922-23; Home Economics Club, 1922-25; Hikers, 1922-23.

"He may live without love, He may live without books; But civilized man Cannot live without cooks."

Kate is most proficient in culinary arts. Along with her Home Economics diploma, she will take away from Salem lasting friendships and delightful memories.

RUTH VIRGINIA JAMES MT. PLEASANT, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Science

First Vice-President Student Council, 1923-24; Winner of Athletic Sweater, 1924-25; Societas Scientiarum, 1924-25; Volleyball Team, 1924-25; Hikers, 1923-25; Captain Hockey Team, 1923-24; Home Economics Club, 1921-25; Wearer of "S."

A steady worker, a conscientious student, a good athlete, an excellent cook, and an accomplished seamstress—that's Ruth. These qualities are exemplified in her work for the class, her studies, her athletic record, her ability in Practice House and in Mrs. Meinung's classes. Needless to say, James is one of the "mainstays" of the class.

EMILY ELIZABETH LEIGHT WALKERTOWN, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Science

President Y. W. C. A., 1924-25; Treasurer Y. W. C. A., 1923-24; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1921-23; Class President, 1922-23; Vice-President, 1921-22; Fire Chief, 1923-24; Fire Lieutenant, 1922-25; Treasurer Student Government Association, 1923-24; Student Council, 1921-22; Honorary Member Student Council, 1924-25; I. R. S., Executive Board, 1924-25; Class Baseball, 1921-24; Class Hockey, 1923-24; Class Basketball, 1923-24; Class Volleyball, 1924-25; Treasurer Home Economics Club, 1923-25; Hilters, 1921-25; Societas Scientiarum, 1924-25; Le Cercle Francais, 1923-24; President's Forum, 1922-25.

Executive ability, popularity, domesticity, amicability—these are just a few of Elizabeth's "bonnes qualities." President's Forum could not exist without her, because they are "so used to ber now."

When she is glad—it's "Hands up." When she is sad—it's "Hands down."

MARY ELEANOR McKELVIE WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Editor-in-Chief "Sights and Insights, 1924-25; President's Forum, 1924-25; Art Editor "Sights and Insights," 1923-24; Blue Ridge Irelegate, 1924; Senior Marshal, 1923-24; I. R. S., 1923-25; "Salemite" Staff, 1923-24; Le Cercle Francais, 1922-25; Secretary Le Cercle Francais, 1922-24; Glee Club, 1922-24; Hikers, 1922-23; Wearer of "S."

Many are her accomplishments, for she is the embodiment of all that is pleasing in woman.

Artistic is her temperament. Even her hair curls naturally, as every artist's should.

Ready at all times to dispel the "blues" with her gay repartee.

Yes, she has an infinite variety of character.

ELGIE NANCE TROY, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of .1rts

"Sights and Insights" Staff, 1924-25; Class Cheer Leader, 1923-24; Volleyball Team, 1923-21; Fire Captain, 1924-25; Wearer of "S"; Y. W. C. A. Choir, 1924-25; Le Cercle Francais, 1923-25; Hikers, 1923-25.

"Oh, mademoiselle" seems to be all the French that Elgie can tell-not really-but her English wants to monopolize the time on class, It's harder! "That schoolgirl com-plexion" is real with her, for she is the envy of every girl's heart in that respect. And, too, her delightful sense of humor gives her the position of joke editor of SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS.

MARY LANIER OGBURN SUMMERFIELD, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Science

President Home Economics Club, 1924-25; Home Economics Club, 1923-25; Student Council, 1924-25; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1924-25; I. R. S. 1924-25; Societas Scientiarum, 1924-25; Basketball Team 1922-23; Hockey, 1922-24; Baseball Team, 1923-24.

Mary is "divinely tall," for does she not lead the stately senior procession? "No es verdad" that her cakes, pies, and candies are good enough for any sweet shop? Even the Home Economics Club has recognized this accomplishment by electing her as its president. Mary has the distinction of being at Salem even from her Academy days. Once during her freshman year she decided to forsake us for Maryland, but Salem soon saw her prodigal return.

ELIZABETH WALTON PARKER NORFOLK, VA.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Beta Beta Phi; Vice-President Class, 1924-25; Treasurer "Pierrette Players," 1924-25; Basketball Team, 1921-25; College Orchestra, 1922-25; Secretary Class, 1921-22; Senior Marshal, 1921-22; Captain Basketball Team, 1922-23; Track Team, 1921-22; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1922-24; Hockey Team, 1922-23; Baseball Team, 1922-23; Secretary Athletic Association, 1923-24; Class Cheer Leader, 1923-24; Vice-President Athletic Association, 1924-25; Secretary Virginia Club, 1924-25; Wearer of "S": Winner of Salem Sweater, 1924; History Club, 1923-24; Le Cercle Francals, 1922-23.

We were afraid that "E. P." would leave us when Esther chose Wisconsin this year, because theirs was a Damon and Pythian friendship. "E. P.'s" originality, mingled with carefreeness and temperamentalism, gives just the variety which makes everyone love her. She can play a violin (Wednesday chapel service gives proof of this), the drums (the "Melody Mashers" couldn't get along without her). "E. P." is popular, too, with men and girls, in the nth degree.

ELIZABETH MAGDALENE RAUHUT BURLINGTON, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Art Editor "Sights and Insights" Staff, 1924-25; Le Cercle Français, 1923-25; Home Economics Club, 1923-25; Hikers, 1922-25; Hockey Team, 1923-24; History Club, 1924-25.

Elizabeth signifies all that is conscientious, loyal, and true. She is characteristically a friend to all, ready to help in whatever way that she can. Then, too, she is studious, not caring if she has to burn midnight oil. She has proved her artistic ability as an art editor of Sights and Insights.

TABBA LEONA REYNOLDS WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Class Prophet, 1924-25; Class Honors, 1922-24; President Le Cercle Français 1921-25; "Sights and Insights" Staff, 1923-25; "Pierrette Players," 1924-25; History Club, 1923-24; Glee Club, 1922-23; President's Forum, 1921-25; Class Historian, 1923-24; Hockey Team, 1923-24,

If Tabba came to Salem to learn her A, B, C's, she began on A and has stuttered for four years on that premiere. Her mathematics is limited, too, as she believes in only plus signs, Although Tabba is listed in the "R's", she is foremost in every honor roll. Her ability to "parlez vous," "s'pavez vous," and "Germanez-eons" is superh!

ELIZABETH AGNES ROOP CHRISTIANSBURG, VA.

Candidate for Bachelor of .1rts

President I. R. S., 1924-25; President's Forum, 1924-25; Vice-President and Secretary Glee Club, 1924-25; Vice-President Y. W. C. A., 1924-25; Assistant Business Manager "Sights and Insights," 1923-24; Photographic Editor "Sights and Insights," 1924-25; Hockey Team, 1922; Home Economics Club, 1924-25; Fire Captain, 1924-25; President Virginia Club, 1924-25; Histery Club, 1924-25; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1923-24; Treasurer MacDowell Club, 1923-24; Hikers, 1922-25.

Capability, generosity, sweetness, originality, wit, stunning clothes, and a sunny disposition make Elizabeth just who she is—the most popular girl in our class! Not only among the girls is she popular, but everyone, as her many letters will testify—especially those long ones that the boats from South America bring. When you want somebody to help you, go to Elizabeth, because she is always ready, with a smile. We are indeed prond to have such a girl as president of I. R. S.

KATE ELIZABETII SHEETS WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Science

Vice-President Class, 1924-25; Home Economics Club, 1924-25; I. R. S., 1924-25; Societas Scientiarum, 1924-25.

In her is found a never-failing sense of humor and spontaneity of wit. She is never too husy to play a prank or to do a favor. She says that she will be a dietitian in some hospital yet. She would make a better cartoonist!

ELEANOR HALE TIPTON STONY POINT, TENN.

Candidate for Bachelor of Science

Home Economics ('lub, 1924-25; Hockey Team, 1924; Virginia-Tennessee ('lub, 1924-25; Tennis Squad, 1924-25; Hikers, 1923-25.

The perpetual "busy" sign accounts for Eleanor's being able to answer many difficult questions correctly. Freshmen make a dash for her to chaperon them uptown. She's always willing, she's always cheerful, and she ir always serene and demure—in fact, she has many more fine characteristics—yes, this small being has her share.

HANNAH BAIRD WEAVER

ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Beta Peta Phi; Blue Ridge Delegate, 1922-23; Vice-President Class, 1923-24; Assistant Editor "Sights and Insights," 1923-24; Le Cercle Francais, 1923-25; Vice-President Le Cercle Frantals, 1924-25.

"Hard-hearted Hannah, the vamp of Savannah." Surely the composer had never met our sweet-hearted Hannah, the vamp of Asheville. Maybe he couldn't make it rhyme. The capital city and Fairmont School donated to Salem a "dulce" disposition, blonde locks, and wonderful brown eyes that sparkle and try to speak when words fail to come in "parlezvousing."

MARGARET ALICE WELLONS SMITHFIELD, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Science

Theta Delta Pi; "Pierrette Players," 1924-25; Societas Scientiarum, 1924-25; "Sights and Insights," 1924-25; I. R. S., 1924-25; Pan-Hellenic Council, 1922-25; Home Economics Club, 1921-25; Basketball, 1923-25; Baseball, 1923-24.

From Wellon's serious attitude toward "Practice House" we are wondering who will be the lucky man, and how soon. She received a bequest of curls from Martha Emily upon the latter's departure from Salem. Wellons possesses one quality which is the goal of every girl—the more you see her the more you like her.

ELLEN COLBURN WILKINSON ROCKY MOUNT, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Treasurer Class, 1924-25; I. R. S., 1924-25; Assistant Business Manager "Salemlte," 1923-24; History Club, 1923-25; Le Cercle Francais, 1924-25; Wearer of "S." Class Hockey Team, 1923-24; Basketball, 1923-24; Fire Captain, 1924-25.

"Happy am I, from care I'm free—why aren't they all content like me?" However, in spite of her pleasure-loving disposition, Ellen is serious when occasions demand it. Yet her sunny smiles and sincere friendship cannot help but win her fame.

LOUISE WOODARD WILSON, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of .1rts

Beta Beta Phi; Baseball Varsity, 1921-23; Hockey Team, 1921-24; Basketball Varsity, 1923-24; MacDowell Club Board, 1924-25; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1924-25; Class Cheer Leader, 1924-25; Wearer of "S."

Wilson did not lessen its wonderful reputation when it sent us Louise. The Y. W. C. A. Cabinet is proud to have her this year, for she has been quite generous with her willingness to help in most everything. Louise will be lucky enough to have a trip ahroad this summer. How we envy her! Good wishes and hon voyage!

FRANCES YOUNG WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts

Beta Beta Phi; "The Pierrelte Players," 1924-25; Glee Club, 1922-24; History Club, 1922-24; Executive Board, MacDowell Club, 1922-23; Vice-President Class, 1922-23.

All aboard for Wisconsin! She came, she went—hut the desire to return to Salem conquered her. Frances always speaks in that dramatic tone of voice, whether she is telling a group of High School English teachers how to teach English or playing an important role in a performance of the "Pierrette Players."

Class Poem

The lessons wisely taught to us by thee,
Our Alma Mater, shall remain to guide
Our feeble efforts in the untried world,
Where humble minds take place of hateful pride.

We pity those who never knew or felt
The blissful solitude within thy walls,
The quiet peace that enters every heart
And round it like a benediction falls.

There, all the tumult of the world without, The pompous vanity and hated strife, Is lost amid the quiet and the calm, The deep seclusion of thy cloistered life.

There is the lesson learned, so patiently,

To bear the disappointments of the hour;

To cherish constantly the things worth-while;

To keep the soul still sweet in time of power;

To scorn ambition for ambition's sake;
Yet seek to serve at all times, and to strive
To make the world some better, for 'tis thus
One keeps the joy of service still alive;

To find one's better self, and in the search
To pray that one may grasp the torch, and hold
Its light on high for all the sordid world
That counts its wealth in terms of sordid gold.

Chronicles of the Class of '25

Longest remembered and most pleasantly recalled are the years that bring to us our greatest happiness. The four glorious years that the members of the Class of '25 have spent at Salem will be recalled in our most cherished memories.

At the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Salem College, the one hundred and fiftieth Freshman Class was proud to begin its college career. There were ninety-eight of us, fresh but determined.

The sophomores appeared cruel in three days of despotic and terrorizing rule, which ended in an elaborate feast, as a peace offering. The juniors were kind sisters, who welcomed us and delightfully entertained us in the "gym." The seniors were persons on pedestals, to be gazed at with awe.

In athletics we were enthusiastic. At Thanksgiving we joyously proved ourselves victorious over the dreaded sophomores. Then with determination we battled with the seniors, but with poor success. They were too old and experienced.

As sophomores we felt it our duty to uphold the record of badness and boldness. In the initiation of the freshmen we were delighted with the idea of being the tormentors. We were honored by our sisters, the seniors, in being invited to take part in hat-burning. At ivy-planting, we were decorated by them. The uncultivated minds of the year before were amassing knowledge at a surprisingly rapid rate. Every minute seized from English "Lit. and Comp." were precious ones, to be spent for pleasure's sake.

In our junior year we felt important over the thoughts of our coming seniorhood and our dignity as upperclassmen. We worked hard in this year, observing senior mannerisms and accumulating wealth for their entertainment. Our hobbies were teas, parties, fairs, dances, and food sales. As a reward for our efforts, the junior-senior prom, on the night of May 8, was a great success. Then came the morning of May 24, on which the seniors presented us with our caps and gowns. We felt a joyousness that the goal was so near, and yet there was a sense of responsibility and dignity in the donning of the cap and gown.

But when we were "standing at the portals" of the opening of our senior year, on Thursday morning, September 11, each of the thirty-one hearts was thrilled with the thought of what was yet in store for us in these last days at Salem.

We have been told that the present must become past before its happiness is fully realized, but we know that we are happy right now in the year of all years. We are loath to leave, but others are pushing us on in their eagerness. Our motto has been "Generous, Sincere, Friendly." We have tried to do our best and to make our best at least a little better than that of those who have gone before.

"Though from her our hearts may sever,
And we distant roam,
Still abides the memory ever
Of our college home."

Prophecy—The Journey of the Cloud

USED the Prophet as she sat upon the steps commencement morn: "Ah, it is here, the longed-for-day! In two more hours the seniors-no longer seniors, but alumnæ-will depart. Could I but know the destiny of each, where she will go and what she will accomplish! Parting would be less sad, could I but know! Could time but forward turn for sixteen years! Perhaps if I-I'll hie me to the home of Father Time and mayhap he can grant me my request."

Fortbwith the Prophet ran until she reached the castle of that venerable man, Father Time. He greeted her with gravity and asked: "What mission brings you to me, daughter mine?" Then she replied with her request.

"It shall be granted," answered Father Time. Therefore, with many thanks, the happy Prophet hastened on her way. Another inspiration which surged within her made her seek the palace of the Wind.

"Oh, Wind!" she cried. "May I go with you on a journey? Let me fly to farthest lands and visit those who used to be my classmates."

Replied the Wind: "Oh, would you be a cloud and fly with me o'er all the earth?"

"A cloud? Ah, yes-a lovely, fleecy cloud!"

So thus it was. Robed in a silvery fluffiness, dainty and light, she flew before the Wind o'er hill and vale, o'er mountain crest and ocean wave. Scene after scene did pass before them in pantomime. Ah, joyousness, so high up in the air!

The first scene was Washington. A mighty gust of Wind and they stood high above the city.

"Oh, many times have I been here!" whispered the Wind. "Whom do you see?"

"I see (can it be possible?) Katie Holshouser!"

"It is none other. She has become the most efficient librarian in the Library of Congress."

"Is that not Frances Young?"

"'Tis she-the famous congresswoman. Did you not hear her speech made to prohibit teaching method courses in colleges? 'Twas broadcast o'er the world. Do you see no one else?"

"Daisy Lee Glasgow! What is she doing here?"

"She, Secretary of the Treasury, has revolutionized the handling of government finances."

"But, oh, I see another! (The cloud was lower now.) A vision of loveliness! Ah, Elizabeth Leight!"

"Wife of a prominent politician, and leader of Washington society. Now, shall we not be

Again the cloud moved on, fast driven by the Wind.

Another stop, "'Tis Baltimore," the Wind announced.

The Prophet stared for long. "Is that not Lois Culler?"

"It is, and she's a famous surgeon in Johns Hopkins Hospital. Another is there, too-Kate Hunter, dietitian."

"I see, also, Jean Abell, our class president."

"Still is she a president, newly elected, of the National Federation of Women's Clubs-a happy bride, likewise."

Abruptly then the Wind began to blow, and they moved on-on to the metropolis.

Immediately the cloud was thrilled with joy-joy in the heart of the Prophet. For far below were two musicians, "E. P. and Ella Aston!"

"Famous violinist and singer are they, and have just closed a most successful concert tour throughout the States. Full many times I saw them in my travels. Their audiences were thrilled."

"Elizabeth Rauhut! Can she be here?"

"Yes, and a quite successful interior decorator."

"I see two graceful figures-Wellons and Hannah Weaver!"

"Margaret is an actress of much note, and Hannah teaches dancing to Fifth Avenue's choicest maids. Ah, that is all. Still farther north we go. 'Tis Boston, now." Even as he spoke, they found themselves there.

"But two are here," low spoke the Wind. "One you will surely know."

"Yes, Flora Binder. Of course she's something great."

"The Atlantic Monthly does proudly claim her now as its efficient editor. And she has written much that will be read for years."

"Who is the other one? 'Tis Mary Ogburn! What is she doing here?"

"She's mistress of a dainty tea room—one which tempts the appetite of even me. Don't you smell spicy odors?" And even the Cloud, though not supposed to smell, perceived she did.

"A longer journey is before us now," the Wind began, with a great gust. "Come, we must go to Europe. London, first, to see a familiar face." And as he spoke, they hovered o'er the city. Through all the fog they looked, till they beheld—

"Agnes Carlton!" shouted out the Cloud.

"Yes, it is she." The Wind spoke with a growl, and rain did fall. "She's here collecting data for the book which she would write: 'A History of England.' Already she has written one, much read, upon America. Unlike most histories, folks say, her books are full of humor and of human interest. But we must go."

It seemed but a few moments to the Cloud till they were over Paris-Paris, the beautiful-Paris in the evening.

"Do I not see familiar faces—even over here?" The Cloud was now in ecstasy. "Ah, there is Alice Dunklee!"

"Yes, traveling upon her bridal tour around the world."

"And Lois Crowell?"

"Great opera singer, making her debut in Europe."

"Surely that's Elizabeth Roop yonder in the gorgeous evening gown,"

"'Tis she-still buying pretty clothes, and wearing them, and loving them-the envy of even Paris dames and damsels."

"Mary McKelvie, also, I see."

"Ah, she's the charming wife of him who's minister to France from your country. She gave up a promising career as writer and as actress, all for love."

"Next stop, Berlin," the Wind announced as they moved on again. "Here you will see two famous ones, and then a third. See Margaret Hanner, there. Her Math books are well known around the globe. Her latest trigonometry contains some knowledge, so 'tis said, never known before. And Sophia Hall, a scientist of fame. She can out-Darwin Darwin. Her 'Law of Degeneration' has been accepted everywhere—that is, not man from monkeys came, but monkeys came from man."

"I see another-Louise Woodard, there."

"Yes, she's a traveler, enjoying life in ease and luxury. And now, what should you say if we went back across into America and thence to Winston-Salem?"

"Oh, good!" the Cloud exclaimed. And they were off.

"First, let's stop here for a moment," the Wind suggested, as to Jamaica they came. "They have had no rain for a week."

The Cloud moved o'er the island and gentle rain did fall. Clad in rain-coat, smiling brightly, down the steps of a building large came a lady, with a troop of laughing children at her heels. "Constance Allen!" cried the Prophet.

"'Tis she," the Wind replied. "A beroine indeed-the dearly beloved principal of the largest school on the isle."

The Wind gave a growl just then as he pushed the Cloud along. "Surely we must hurry—my journey too lengthy grows." And they found themselves in Carolina, above familiar scenes. "But, why stop here?" the Cloud inquired, as they came to Rural Hall.

"Open your eyes and look around," the Wind replied. In startled amazement the Prophet exclaimed: "If that isn't Elgie Nance!"

"She's a candidate for governor, making speeches, you know—not to the larger cities, but to little towns, does she talk. And folks say she's going to win, too, by her personality. And now we're at Winston-Salem." This followed a violent push.

"Ah, there is Ellen Wilkinson. I wondered where she might be." The Prophet's eyes stack out of the Cloud as she looked at familiar scenes. "And Kate Sheets, too, is below me. What is she doing now?"

"Ellen only last year became the principal of Central School. And Kate—why, she's the author of the famous comic page called 'Komic Klips'—more popular even than Mutt and Jeff. The Sentinel's a wondrous paper now, since they alone do publish this great page. And now, do look at Salem College. Three classmates still are there."

"I see, I see!" The Cloud grew boisterous now; the rain did pour.

"There's Mary Hill; she is the Dean of Women—efficient now, as always. Polly Hawkins is Director of Physical Education, and Ruth James head of the Department of Home Economics—loyal to Salem all. 'Tis time to go." He looked impatient.

"Murmured the Clud: "But I have not seen all. Where's Eleanor Tipton?"

"Oh, almost did I forget! But come with me, and higher fly. See, yonder's Jupiter. And Eleanor is there preaching to the heathen. Do you not see another?"

"I do, and she does look much like myself."

"It is yourself-crowning your study of earthly languages with that of Jupiter."

"Of Jupiter! So I'm a heathen, now! I think it's time to go."

"I know it is!" And with a growl the Wind dissolved the Cloud, and then-

Alone upon the steps the commencement morn, the Prophet sat and mused: "Can it be true, all this that I have seen? Then, happy let us be to part to go our separate ways—happy, indeed, that we are called 'Daughters of '25'—illustrious some, happy more, and loyal all."

Last Will and Testament

STATE: NORTH CAROLINA

COUNTY: FORSYTH.

E, the Class of 1925, passing into the four corners of the cold and merciless world, leave unto our beneficiaries our dearest and most beloved possessions here at Salem.

First, we do will to the Class of 1929 our class colors, with the sincere hope that they will ever remain where they were placed by the Class of 1925 this Thanksgiving.

 S_{econd} , I, Jean Abell, bequeath to the incoming senior president all of my responsibilities, troubles, and praises.

Third. we, Mary Ogburn and Elizabeth Rauhut, on whom rests the responsibility of holding up "both ends" of the class, do will our caps and gowns to any loyal members of the Class of 1926 whom they might accidentally fit.

Fourth, the publication office is willed by the present occupants to the editorial staffs of next year with the sincere hope that it will be large enough for both.

Fifth, our beloved and helpful teacher, Miss Hall, we will to the next class that is fortunate enough to get this "Georgia Peach."

Sixth, I, Alice Dunklee, rest upon the shoulders of Ruth Efird the duties of keeping the off-campus girls functioning in college activities.

Seventh, I, Daisy Lee Glasgow, do cheerfully shift my burden of making both ends meet to the incoming business manager of Sights and Insights.

Eighth, I, Flora Binder, bestow upon Miriam Brietz my library and vast amount of information, to be used as she sees fit.

Ninth, we, Elizabeth Roop, Daisy Lee Glasgow, Margaret Wellons, Frances Young, and Alice Dunklee, being the only members of the class able to do so, will to the bobbed-haired members of '26 our hair, thus granting them privilege of assuming dignity on becoming seniors.

Tenth, I, Mary McKelvie, do gratefully shake off my "annual" troubles to the incoming editor of Sights and Insights.

Eleventh, I, Ella Aston, will and bequeath to Helen Griffin my relations to and similar qualities of Galli-Curci.

Twelfth, I, Mary Hill, hestow my gown of royal purple upon the next president of Student Government, with the hope that her duties will be of such a character that this honor will be a pleasure rather than a burden.

Thirteenth, we, Ella Aston and Frances Young, bequeath our daily walks to town to any of the seniors that might enjoy them half as much as we.

Fourteenth, we both leave and carry with us wherever we go a deep love and appreciation for the loving guidance and friendship of Mrs. Rondthaler and Miss Stipe.

Fifteenth, to our Alma Mater we leave wishes for a success that cannot be estimated, and a love that cannot be measured.

It witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and fixed my seal, this twelfth day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty-five.

FRANCES YOUNG, Testator.

Signed, sealed, published, and declared by Frances Young, the testator, for the Class of 1925, as their last will and testament, in the presence of us, who, at her request and in the presence of each other, have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses.

JEAN ABELL, President.
PAULINE HAWKINS, Secretary.

Chronicles of the Class of 1926

OW it came to pass that a tribe called freshmen came to the land of Salem and took up their abode, and they were strong and mighty and good to look upon. And behold, there came up out of the north a race of giants, and they did battle for the space of three days, but the new tribe came out victorious. And the name of the giants was Sophomore.

And now the Freshmen were fallen upon days of sorrow and many trials, but finally they were led safely out of the valley of Probation and rested upon the mountain which is called Freedom. On the volleyball court they battled mightily and triumphed, and there was great rejoicing.

And they lifted up their voices and cried out, "Call us not Freshmen, but Sophomores; for lo! we are wise, and yet we are foolish." And henceforth they were called Sophomores.

And it came to pass that strange tribes came out and fought fiercely, but the Sophomores were strong in wisdom and understanding, and it was given them to be victorious in many battles.

And they rose up and went out into far places and returned and were called Juniors, for they were no longer foolish.

And it came to pass that the queen's son was married to a daughter of a kinsman, and there was much rejoicing and many people were bid to the wedding feast. And the members of the tribe of Junior were exalted and set up in high places, and much honor and glory was theirs.

History of the Sophomore Class

N the twelfth of September, 1923, the illustrious Class of '27 entered Salem College as freshmen with a large enrollment of one hundred and eight girls. The higher education of these students began immediately by the addition to their vocabulary of two strange words—probation and initiation. The former became an actual experience even before these poor, ignorant freshmen were fully aware of its meaning; but the latter, though dreadful in anticipation, was in reality a most delightful occasion.

Throughout the scholastic year various entertainments were given in honor of the freshmen, each of which brought to them a truer interpretation of that intangible something called "Salem spirit." Notable among these social festivities were the reception given by Mrs. Rondthaler, the dance given by the Junior Class, and the party given by the Student Council at the end of probation.

Soon after school began, the election of officers took place. Marion Neely was elected president; Frances Mason, first vice-president; Anna Pauline Shaffner, second vice-president; Helen Ford, secretary; Elizabeth Transou, treasurer, and Margaret Hartsell, historian.

The Class of '27 has achieved distinction not only as a group, but also, in several cases, as individuals. Marian Neely, the Freshman Class president, was selected to represent Salem College at the great international student convention at Indianapolis in December, 1923. This year the class feels greatly honored in hearing two of its members, Jenny Wolfe and Sarah Bell, make announcements in chapel as heads of volley ball and swimming, respectively.

Although greatly reduced in size, the Class of '27, now known as the Sophomore Class, is living up to its noble reputation of past achievement, and is anticipating an extremely happy and successful year under the enthusiastic leadership of the following group of officers: Ruth Piatt, president; Ruth Pfohl, vice-president; Elizabeth Transou, second vice-president; Margaret Hartsell, secretary; Anna P. Shaffner, treasurer; and Frances Jarratt, historian.

The Freshman Class!
The Freshman Class!
Is leading them all around!
And if there is a better class
It never has been found!
With pluck and luck and loyalty
We all of us are bound.
Oh, the Freshman Class—
The Freshman Class—
Is leading them all around!

History of the Freshman Class

N September the tenth we freshmen, the greenest of the green, arrived at Salem to begin our four years' work. We were not quite sure what it was all about, but were vaguely aware that something was going on around us. Alas, a direful calamity awaited us! We were put on probation for six weeks. This added terror to terror.

It was not so long, though, before we freshmen found our places in this school of knowledge. Therefore, under our capable officers—namely, Althea Backenstoe, president; Elizabeth Dowling, vice-president; Isabel Hubbard, secretary; and Mary Enloe, treasurer—we made rapid progress. To help us along, our big sisters, the juniors, gave us a picnic over on the hill. Our hearts were opened to our sisters, and we felt an inexpressible gratitude towards them, especially for the hot dogs and rolls.

Our life was one event after another. But, mixed in with the toils of the classroom, we had our fun in athletics. Much to our surprise, but to our great delight, and by much hard work on the part of the freshman team, we were able to defeat the upperclassmen in volleyball. Our joy knew no bounds.

Then came Thanksgiving, a day of great rejoicing, for we had much for which to be thankful. We were off probation, and the Student Council gave us a most delightful party in honor of our good behavior. But we also were strongly hopeful of winning the cup in basketball.

Alas! we found that we had aspired to heights too great. The sophomores, our enemies on the field, but at all other times our friends, brought much grief into our ranks by defeating us, in a hard-fought game, by one point. This did not put a damper on our ardor for long. We were up and fighting again, with the firm intention of being the conquerors in hockey.

We freshmen—already much wiser than we were in the past, and fully realizing that we have much to learn in the future—intend to attain to such great heights in this world that Salem will never forget us, and will be proud to call us her own.

CHAPTER IV
ORGANIZATIONS

Presidents' Forum

The Presidents' Forum is composed of the presidents or heads of all the organizations in college. The chairmanship of this body is a rotating office, therefore each girl in the organization may have charge of at least one meeting during the year.

The Presidents' Forum is organized for the purpose of discussing matters such as the Student Friendship Fund, the Red Cross Seal Campaign, etc., that are of vital interest to the college as a whole. There is a regular meeting scheduled in each month, but additional meetings may be called if the occasion arises-

The Presidents' Forum consists of the heads of the following organizations: President of Salem Academy and College as honorary member, President Student Government, President Y. W. C. A., President Athletic Association, Undergraduate Representative, Chairman of I. R. S., Editor of Sights and Insights, Editor of The Salemité, Fire Chief, Song Leader, President of the History Club, President of Le Cercle Francais, President of Societas Scientiarum, President of the Home Economics Club, President of "Pierrette Players," President of the Senior Class, President of the Junior Class, President of the Sophomore Class, President of the Freshman Class.

HE Student Self-Government Association, as is implied by its name, is an organization whose membership is made up of every girl in college. For the first six or eight weeks of the college year freshmen are associate members of the organization, for they are not made full, active members until such time as the Student Council deems it wise to lift their period of probation.

The executive powers of this organization are embodied in the Student Council. The officers and representatives are elected the previous spring. The president and the two vice-presidents, as well as four representatives, are elected from the Senior Class, the secretary and treasurer and three representatives are from the Junior Class. From both of the two remaining classes, three representatives are elected. The house presidents act as members of the council. The president of the Y. W. C. A. is an honorary member. She has the power of suggestion, but not the power of vote.

The Student Self-Government Association of Salem College was organized in 1914. The purpose of this organization has always been to develop self-control and loyalty in the students, to instill in them the highest principles of honor and self-development, and to enforce such regulations as do not fall exclusively under the province of the administration.

Because of the developing and widening effect that the Student Self-Government Association has upon character, one might say that it is the most important organization of college life.

HE Young Women's Christian Association is the one Christian organization on our campus to which every Salem girl belongs. This most vital organization is here to be your friend, especially through the first trying weeks of school.

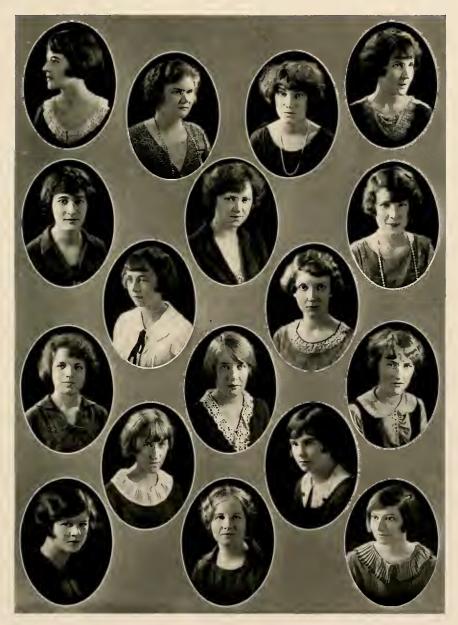

Meetings have been held regularly in the living room of Alice Clewell Building on Friday evenings at 6:30 o'clock, and each member has a number of chances to show her interest and enthusiasm in the Y. W. C. A.

Did not you enjoy those birthday parties given by the Social Committee? And how many of you have been with the Social Service Committee to the Children's Home for "story hour," or to the Old Ladies' Home to sing or play for them? Then, too, there is the "Y" store. Do you not remember how good those peanuts, potato chips, cakes, and candies tasted after several hours of hard study?

We have tried to work in cooperation with the City Association by taking part in their meetings, and having Miss Howes come down to see us. We have also assisted in teaching at nights some industrial girls, who were unable to attend day schools.

Evening watch plays no small part in our daily lines at Salem. This, as we know, is under the direction of the Y. W. C. A., but each individual has a chance for leadership in this phase of student activities. You just cannot imagine how much better and really "recreated" you feel if you end the day by going with all the other girls in your hall to sing and spend a little time in devotion to God.

HE above caption means simply, "I Represent Salem," and these three words form the slogan of one of the outstanding organizations on the college campus. To represent Salem implies various things, among which are loyalty and fidelity to the ideals of one's Alma Mater; and it was to foster just such qualities that the movement was initiated four years ago. Each year since there has been elected a committee consisting of off-campus members from the four college classes to represent the student body in the matter of appearance, morals, and ideals, and to influence their companions to uphold the standards of the college.

It took Miss Stipe, Dean of Women, to realize that an important phase of its activity should be a campaign along the line of "brushing up socially," and to the institute, in 1924, "Social Forum," which would be the channel for teaching such extra curricula subjects as social usages, social etiquette, and profitable use of leisure time. A part of this programme were the talks on "Dancing," by Mrs. Frederick Hanes, of Winston-Salem, and on "Etiquette in Traveling and in Hotels," by Mrs. James Hartness, of Statesville, and Dr. Rondthaler.

In the early spring the scope was widened by the introduction of a series of talks on health and hygiene by Miss Stipe and Mrs. Rondthaler.

Appearance, morals, ideals, social usages, and health have come to be the interests of the organization, in which, as in no club or society, is evinced the unmistakable characteristic of all true Salem daughters—Salem Spirit.

Le Cercle Français claims a prominent place among the various departmental organizations of the college. The purpose of the club is to develop fluency in speaking French by means of programs in which the members take part, and during the three years of its existence it has accomplished much in this respect.

The membership is composed of college students who have done advanced work with a certain proficiency in the study of the French language and literature, teachers in the Modern Language Department, and faculty members interested in French.

On the second Thursday of each month are held regular meetings at which varied and unique programs are presented. On some occasions outside speakers address the club on subjects of general interest, giving appreciative interpretations of the idiosyncracies and peculiarities of the French people. However, we do not rely exclusively on lecturers, but the members themselves prepare discussions on topics pertaining to French literature, history, and present-day conditions in France. Some programs are devoted to the study of the outstanding authors of France, such as Moliere, Victor Hugo, Balzac, and the famous women in French literature. In response to roll call the members quote passages from the writer under discussion or give the name of a well-known work. Certain speakers discuss the author's life and personality, while others review his works, literary characteristics, and rank among the world's great men of letters. Carefully planned dramatizations, as well as games, add life and interest to some of the programs. The musical talent finds expression in the French songs which figure on a large number of the programs.

Much effort is being expended to improve and develop the standards of the club so that it may be of more value to the intellectual life of the college.

Five years ago the Home Economics Club was organized by Miss Leftwich. The club was formed to create more interest in Home Economics in school and to work towards the creation of a practice house. The membership is open to anyone interested in the subject of Home Economics. Parties and refreshments keep the meetings from becoming dull and uninteresting. Bazaars and dinners were given to help make money for the practice house. The future for the club is interesting, because the practice house is only a dream, but the senior apartment this year marks one step nearer the long-looked-for practice house.

The History Club of Salem College was organized three years ago for the purpose of bringing its members in touch with world problems, both past and present. Monthly programs have been arranged which endeavor, by their variety, to touch the interests of all students. Speakers from outside Salem College have been most generous in the giving of their time, and have presented before the club historical problems or their personal experiences which will stimulate student thinking or broaden student understanding. Among the many organizations which tend to center the attention of the undergraduate on purely college affairs, the History Club stands with open membership to remind the student of the larger world in which she must soon play an active part, and by bringing constantly before her matters of past and present importance, to keep her vision clear, her horizon far-flung.

In October, 1924, the Dramatic Club of Salem College was organized with the title of "Pierrette Players.'

It is the desire of the club to have a student feel that membership is a rare honor, therefore the committee on membership selected girls for the try-outs only after consultation with the faculty in regard to scholastic standing and general ability.

The purpose of "The Pierrette Players" is to make the club one of the outstanding features nf Salem College. The intention also is to make the club educational as well as entertaining. Drama is studied in its various phases, and the technique of the presentation of plays is dwelt upon with especial care.

pon with especial care.

During the present collegiate year "The Pierrette Players" will present "The Maker of Dreams," by Oliphant Dawn; "Suppressed Desires," by Ellen Glasgow and George Crain Cook; "Enter the Hero," by Theresa Hepburn; and one long play not yet selected.

The club will be a permanent organization at Salem. Dramatic talent, given a chance to express itself, is being unearthed all the while. If a member does not care for acting, but prefers writing, original plays will be accepted with especial interest and appreciation. Thus "The Pierrette Players" fills a gap in the college curriculum which has long been left unfilled, and is existing writing provided in the study of drama and and is striving, with cooperation of each enthusiastic member, to make the study of drama and the presentation of plays a necessity for the better understanding and appreciation of that most vital type of literature-the drama.

The Societas Scientiarum Salemensis, the society of the sciences at Salem, was organized in September, 1924, by a group of students who thought that there ought to be an organization among students interested in science. The constitution of this organization says that, "The general object of this society shall be to unite all students of science in concerted action for the advancement of scientific knowledge." The active membership is limited to twenty-four members. Each person, to become a member, must have passed two courses in science, and must pursue a scientific subject throughout her college course. To become a member of the society, a person must submit an application and he approved by the membership of the society. Members of the scientific faculty may become associate members.

hers of the scientific faculty may become associate members.

At each meeting of the society, held every two weeks, on Monday night, great interest is stimulated in scientific subjects through demonstrations, written presentations, and lectures. The programmes for the first year of the society included an interesting discussion of public health, the explanation of magic tricks, a demonstration of the uses of carbon dioxide and oxygen, and the explanation of radin. At each meeting current events from the world of science were given an important place.

It is considered an honor to be able to obtain and retain membership in this society, because it demands of its members a high scholastic standard, and because its members cannot hold membership in more than two other academic societies.

The MacDowell Club was organized in 1919. Having as its purpose the advancement of the cultural and social life of the college, it was fitting that it should take its name from the greatest of American musicians, Edward MacDowell. From time to time the club held meetings of varied interest. Sometimes there were concerts, sometimes lectures, sometimes more or less impromptu entertainments gotten up by the members themselves. Early in the history of the club Mrs. MacDowell appeared under its auspices in a memorable evening devoted to her husband's compositions. In lighter vein was a series of scenes from famous novels, done by different class and faculty groups. There have been community sings, picnics, readings, and other activities as varied as these.

In 1922 the Club decided to purchase a motion picture machine. This was done with great enthusiasm. A first-class machine being installed in Memorial Hall, it was natural that most of the entertainments should be "movies." However, the more cultural aspects of the club have not been lost sight of. This year at least two evenings of a different character have been planned.

When the campaign for the college endowment was started, the club made a substantial pledge toward its support. This pledge, $500.00, has been paid in full.

All students in the College, all Academy seniors, and all faculty members are eligible to membership. The fee is almost nominal, and entitles the members to attendance at the entire series of entertainments, which is spread over the whole college year. The governing board consists of the usual officers plus a representative from each class and faculty group, including the of-campus students. The club is one of the liveliest and most enthusiastic organizations on the campus.

Blue Ridge

The Southern Student Conference was held at Blue Ridge, North Carolina, from June 6 to June 16, 1924. For a number of years similar conferences have been conducted under the auspices of the National Board of Young Women's Christian Associations. There were present at this conference representatives from every school for girls in the South. Salem College had fourteen delegates.

The aim of the conference was to discover how to live unreservedly Jesus' law of love in every relationship, and so to know God. The entire program was planned and carried out with this aim in view. For this purpose the program provided for group study and discussion and platform addresses. The manifest intention of those having the programme in charge was to excite the thought on the part of the students attending this conference rather than to hand out ready-made ideas. The discussions were very animated, and it was very apparent that the plan was successful.

was successful.

The topics discussed were problems of national and world-wide interest. There were a number of eminent speakers present who lectured. Foremost among these was Dr. A. Bruce Curry, Jr., of the Biblical Seminary of New York. He brought to the conference a new method of studying the Bible, which showed that the same solution to problems in Bible times may be applied to modern problems.

Dr. R. B. Eleazer ably discussed the industrial problems which are very prominent in the world at present. There were also lectures on the interracial situation, citizenship, and world

From the very first day of the conference the delegates were impressed by the fact that each one seemed to have a part in the conference. Every girl present was urged to contribute her viewpoint, and make the conference a success.

Blue Ridge is the conference center in the South, and there could be no more wonderful place for such conferences than among the mountains of North Carolina. At this conference, girls from all over the South met and enjoyed the days together. To say that the conference was wonderful is putting it mildly. Ask one of the Salem delegates. She will tell you!

At the invitation of Dean Shirley, we gave a program of Christmas carols and choruses at the regular music hour on December 11. In this we were assisted by our kind friends, Misses Isabel Wenhold and Sara Yost, of the Violin Department; Miss Mary Cash, organ; Mr. Charles Vardell and Miss Ruth Duncan, accompanists; Miss Jessie Lupo, who, with Miss Desha, sang from the "Messiah;" and last, but not least, the faculty "echo."

Our work included an operetta, "The College Girl and the Milkmaid," with "The Spanish Gypsies," tableaux chantants interpolated. "Dairy Maids" and "Dancing Gypsies" mingled together around the fortune teller. The costumes and voices and the presentation were most attractive.

This brought to a close our most successful year under the competent leadership of Miss Desha.

MARY ALTA ROBBINS, Fire Chief

The Fire Department of Salem College is an organization that is composed of one fire chief and a number of captains and lieutenants. The captains and lieutenants are appointed by the fire chief and the dean of women.

When the fire gong sounds the students are led from their rooms by the captain. While the students are leaving, the first lieutenants inspect each room. They have to observe fire rules.

The first fire drill of each year is announced. All students are directed the route to take when the fire gong sounds. This year fire drill was very successful. It was as follows:

The Athletic Association of Salem College has for its purpose the development and supervision of Athletics. Every girl who is regularly enrolled in the college is considered a member of the Association. This organization and its work is equally as important as any other of the many Salem organizations, for it develops the girl physically as the Y. W. C. A. develops her spiritually, etc. There is some form of athletics for every kind and temperament of girl given at Salem.

The physical director is over all forms of athletics; the mechanical part is transacted by a staff of officers. Each sport has a head to stimulate interest, to keep up with practices, to lead and put pep into her sport.

The Association has a very complicated system of points for each sport with the ultimate aim a white Salem College sweater, decorated with a yellow "S," awarded for seven points in any sport each year for three years. The Association holds up a high standard. No girl may enter any sport for credit who receives more than one or two D's.

To stimulate interest, an athletic chart has been kept for the past two years showing the percentage of the school participating in athletics, and also the percentage from each class. This has worked up a great deal of class rivalry and motivated a great interest in athletics.

The spirit in athletics at Salem has always been a source of great pride. Good sportsmanship, playing the game for the game's sake, being good winners as well as good losers, are a few of the rules followed.

Basketball

All through the year 1924-25 an excellent spirit was shown in basketball. There were practice games between the classes in which the interest rose high, and urged everyone on to greater effort.

everyone on to greater effort.

Several days before Thanksgiving, pep meetings were held, and inspiring songs and yells were practiced. There was more interest this year in the pep meetings than ever before. Each team was full of pep, and each class was backing her team.

Finally the great day arrived! The weather was clear, and cold enough to lend zest to the players. Red, white, yellow, black and purple were there in great profusion. In the running-up games the seniors defeated the juniors, and the sophomores won over the freshmen. The sister classes contended for the cup, and after much suspense, the game was won by the seniors. There were great rejoicing and real thanksgiving, for not only the seniors themselves, but everyone else in the school, was delighted that the seniors should so appropriately celebrate their last Thanksgiving at Salem.

Volley ball at Salem this year was a great success. Although as a sport it does not yet hold as high a place in athletics as basketball, nevertheless glenty of enthusiasm and co-operation was shown by all. Since there were not enough upperclassmen to make the regular teams of junior-freshmen against senior-sophomores, as has formerly been the case, and as there were twice as many freshmen as upperclassmen, it was decided to choose one team of freshmen and one consisting of sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

Several interesting practice games were played by these teams before the final games on Monday, November 14. These games were closely contested, the upperclassmen winning the first game, and the freshmen, the second. The score in both games stood one to one, and excitement prevailed in both teams, for only one game was needed to decide the winner of the contest. The freshmen finally won this game with the score of 15 to 14.

Although the side-lines were lacking in quantity, they made up for this deficiency in the quality of their cheering, and lots of pep and enthuslasm was displayed throughout the games, especially during the final one.

Both teams showed good sportsmanship, and the displayed throughout the game, eep-final one.

Both teams showed good sportsmanship, and the upperclassmen were as good losers as were the fresh-men good winners. The volley ball varsity was com-posed of six upperclassmen and five freshmen. With such a good beginning from the freshmen this year, volleyball next year should be better than ever before.

Track

Until the year 1921, track was a minor sport at Salem. During that year two new features were introduced. These were the running broad jump and standing broad jump. The freshmen of that year, who are now seniors, enthusiastically participated.

The year 1924 resulted in a successful year for track. At the annual track meet in May, the class relay races were added to the former features, running high jump, running broad jump, and standing broad jump. The relay teams were composed of four members from each of the four classes. The freshman team was successful in winning the race. Since the relay race has been added to our track events, it is certain that it will occupy as important a place as the other features which have been instituted.

The freshmen were also successful in winning instituted.

The freshmen were also successful in winning the various jumps. Mary Wilder won the high jump with a record of 3 feet, 11 inches, while Ella Raper won the running broad jump with 13 feet, 2 inches, breaking Salem's previous record of 12 feet, 9½ inches.

There are bright prospects for the year 1925, and it is certain that it will be another successful year for track. The records made hereto'ore compare favorably with the national records for women's colleges. We are proud of these records, and expect to bring them up to a higher mark.

Soccer

And yet another sport appears on the athletic horizon of Salem College—soccer! Soccer has been a major sport in the Academy for many years, but has not broken through the line of athletics in the college until the year 1925. However, the college has adopted soccer with great enthusiasm and entered into the game with much vim and pep, undoubtedly finding in it all the thrill and action so much admired in football. Suchets are watching the growth and the development of soccer in the college with great interest, expecting it to surpass the minor sports, and, within a few years, take its rightful place as the favorite sport of college, ranking next to basketball.

Hockey

Hockey! Hockey! Hockey! That is the game which is old in history, but comparatively new at Salem. This is just the sixth year that this wonderful old game has been played on this campus, and each year it gains in progress and popularity. It is the game on campus which calls for the greatest number of players, and thus creates between the classes a wholesome spirit of rivalry that is so important in the success of any sport.

Each fall the old girls faithfully climb to the top of the bill for practice, and they are eagerly joined by a number of freshmen who early grow enthusiastic in field bockey. This season bids fair to exceed those of other years. Last year the game was won by the freshmen after a hard-fought battle with the upperclassmen.

classmen.

This year we expect to have four spirited teams, one from each class, which will enthusiastically compete for the beautiful loving cup which the faculty presented to the Athletic Association in nineteen hundred and twenty-four to be presented each successive year to the winning team. Interest and enthusiasm arrunning high, and this season's victory will be won only by a long, hard fight. In the future, we are expecting hockey to take a first place in athletics at Salem.

HOCKEY SQUAD

Tennis

Tennis, which is one of the oldest sports at Salem, has aroused more interest this year among the students than ever before. At the opening of school a large number of girls signed up to play in the tennis tournament. This year two tournaments will be played, instead of the regular interclass tournaments of past years. The singles began enthusiastically, with about fifty participants. A few of this number, however, have been eliminated. Those whose names remain on the list are striving to win. The winner in the singles tournament is entitled to have her name engraved on the tennis cup. All the college girls are eagerly awaiting the time when the winner will be announced.

TENNIS SQUAD

Swimming

Swimming, one of the oldest and best known sports in all the world, has at last come into its own at Salem. We have a heautiful new pool, given by Miss Etta Shaffher, and now swimming is one of the most popular sports on the campus, Every afternoon when the weather permits it, the pool is crowded. Heretofore the participation in this sport has been largely prevented because a pool was not conveniently accessible. We deeply appreciate the kindness of the Y. W. C. A. in allowing us the privilege of using its pool during previous years, and thus making swimming a possible sport for Salem.

Every little point won in athleties helps to win the coveted "S" and later, the sweater. An easy way to make some is to pass certain simple requirements in diving and swimming. Before this year points were not given in swimming, but now easy way to make some is to pass certain simple requirements in diving and swimming. Before this year points were not given in swimming, but now everyone has a chance to make some in it. Basketball, hockey, and volleyball are games that many cannot take part in, but every girl can learn to swim if she tries. Life-saving tests will be given which gives a Red Cross emblem to all who pass them. Besides gaining points, one gains in health, for what sport is more healthful than swimming?

Our pool is as yet out of doors, but already steps are being taken by the students to raise enough money to cover it. When this is accomplished, swimming will be an all-year sport at Salem. Plenty of pep and co-operation have been shown in all that has been undertaken this year in regard to swimming plans. Let us keep up this spirit, and swimming will become the best sport on the campus.

campus.

Baseball

Baseball for the year nineteen twenty-four, twenty-five is going to stand out as one of the most prominent athletic events. This will be due to the four previous years of hard work on the part of baseball enthusiasts. In May, 1924, the senior-sophomore and the junior-freshman teams met on the hill and there was fought one of the hardest battles ever witnessed on Salem soil. Amid the cheering of many loyal classmates, the junior-freshman team proved itself worthy of the sought-for title. They managed to get absolute control of their opponents at the beginning of the game, and stayed far ahead until the end of the game. In the final inning the score was sixteen to four. We are quite sure that should these great champions challenge Washington, the noble "Senators" would be put to shame.

Hiking

Throughout each year at Salem there is one sport and means of diversion which continues from one Saturday to another until the whole year has slipped away. Hiking, which is properly called walking, is comparatively an old sport at Salem, and year in and year out it is greeted and supported by a loyal, enthusiastic group of girls.

Each season presents new and attractive scenes to lovers of nature, and often girls are brought to a new and deeper realization of the every-day beauty which surrounds them. The fall brings crisp, cool days, ideal for walking and enhanced by the vivid coloring of autumn leaves. The clear, cold days of winter give something to overcome and usually cause the hikers to hurry back home, hilarious and rosy-cheeked and happy. Springtime, of course, brings the most perfect days, with new leaves, and flowers, and birds. And, no matter which season, there is always newness and beauty.

As a reward for fifteen hikes, one of which is a test hike, the coveted yellow "S" is given at the end of the year. Occasionally the hikers indulge in wiener roasts or picnics, thus adding to the fun and strengthening the spirit of comradeship.

Each girl counts one or more new friends as she returns from a walk. There is a certain feeling of fellowship created which lasts even after the memory of the hike has faded. The freedom and fun and wholesomeness of a group of hikers appeals, eventually, to every girl who takes part. For years the walking club has been enthusiastically supported. This year it has been a decided success-in fact, "the best ever," and there is no hesitancy in saying the same thing about next year, for we have the whole-hearted co-operation of a group of loyal Salem girls.

CHAPTER VI STATISTICS

CHAPTER VII

CUSTOMS AND TRADITIONS

Dean's Mittens

Dean Shirley's Mittens

Dean Shirley, unlike the three kittens of Mother Goose fame, has never yet lost his mittens. On a cold. snowy, wintry day the Dean is seen walking across the campus with his hands protected by dark blue mittens. But who wouldn't be willing to wear mittens every day in the year, if they could play as beautifully as he can?

Thanksgiving Games and Banquet

Thanksgiving day at Salem is the peppiest day of all the year. The final basketball games are played, and every class is sure of winning "that cup again tonight." Those who play, play so hard, and those who do not play yell so hard that there is never too much turkey or mince pie when the banquet hour arrives.

Music Hour

The hour on Thursday afternoon when various musical programs—recitals, illustrated lectures, and concerts—are presented. All music students are required to attend, and all those interested in musical subjects are always invited.

Advent Services by Bishop

No number of Christmas trees, no Christmas carols or bells, can furnish to Salem girls the great spirit of Christmas that is gained from the talks by Bishop Rondthaler during the Advent season. He follows various lines of discourse, he always leaves with his hearers the thought that the true spirit of Christmas is giving oneself—the same spirit of Christ.

Lenten Services by Bishop

During Lent the expanded Chanel services are given over to Bishop Rondthaler to picture graphically the life, death, and glorious resurrection of Christ. After hearing one series of these talks, it is an easy thing for a new student to realize why Salem people are called "The Easter People."

Junior-Senior Prom

No, indeed, this is not a dance. When Salem College sponsors a dance, all its customs and traditions will be destroyed. But the prom is truly a promenade which the juniors give in honor of the seniors. This is the one occasion on which hoys are invited to Salem. The back campus is decorated not only with Japanese lanterns, flowers, and those taking part in the prom, but also by the sophomores and freshmen, who are peeping from behind trees and hedges with envinus eyes at the upperclassmen—and the men! The recreation room is made into a "bower of roses" (the same having been made by the tireless hands of the Juniors), where the banquet takes place. And there's always an orchestra, too!

Miss Mary Meinung

To hear her whisper is enough to make anyone fond of "Miss Mary." We tremble to think what the library would be without her. If she is not helping girls find material for their subjects, or hustling about straightening up the magazine table, she is standing, watch in hand, ready to ring the bell for classes on time.

Senior Christmas Carols

It has long been the custom for the seniors, on the night before the Christmas holidays begin, to sing Christmas carols. Each senior carries a lighted condle. They sing around the dormitories, and then to many of the old friends of Salem who are beloved by all the girls.

Senior Vespers

The most impressive and beautiful of all the services connected with the Christmas seoson is the senior vesper service. In the library, which is the scene of a miniature town of Bethlehem, a vesper service is held on the last Sunday before the Christmas holidays. The seniors enter, singing carols and carrying condles. Each senior lights a number of candles, passing them down the rows until everybody in the room has a lighted condle.

Senior Christmas Party

On the Saturday before everybody leaves for the Christmas vacation the juniors, sophomores, and freshmen give a party for the seniors. After dinner everybody gathers in the living room, which is decorated for Christmas. There is always a huge Christmas tree laden with gifts for the seniors and faculty. A little verse is attached to each present, and Santa Claus reads them as he presents the gifts. After everything has been distributed, ambrosia and fruit cake are served. This annual Christmas party is perhaps the most successful of the series of entertainments of the year, for everybody is filled with something even better than the Salem spirit—and this is the Christmas spirit.

Monday Afternoons Off

A custom that is a joy to every Salem girl is that there are no classes on Monday afternoon. No matter what the weather is, the girls, dressed in their best, start for "town" on Monday afternoon. One sees them in groups of twos and threes, and maybe, if it is at the beginning of school, when the freshmen have to have chaperons, the groups are as large as the much-fabled army of Coxey. And, strange as it may seem, nearly all the girls are headed for one place—the movies!

SENIOR HAT BURNING, 1925

Hat Burning

The seniors, in a dramatic and picturesque manner, give up their symbol of frivolity, the fancy hat, and are awarded their robes of dignity—the black caps and gowns—given by the college president.

Young People's Meeting

Better known as "Y, P. M.," from eleven to twelve on Wednesday morning. It was, formerly, an hour which Bishop Rondthaler chose to give the students of the college and academy Bible lectures. Now, it is the time when important views of the life of college women are discussed.

Main Hall

Where all the teaching, learning, cutting (classes and dresses), and some sleeping are done.

Salemite

The college newspaper, which spreads abroad all good news, including jokes fresh from the Nut Cracker, and current history from a poet's pen.

Lover's Leap

A vine-covered cliff on the back campus, where the girls take their dates on the evening of the prom to test the strength of friendship.

Chapel

The half-hour service in the morning furnishes an apportunity for students to prepare their minds for a day's work which is really worth while.

Transfer of Colors and Flowers

The graduating class of each year bestows upon the incoming Freshman Class their colors and flower that its members have claimed since their entry in college as a class. The four sets of class colors are in this way maintained from year to year.

Miss Anna

Mr. BURRAGE

"Miss Anna"

Rome had its Cæsar, France had its Napoleon, and Salem has its "Miss Anna." No, she's not "the vamp of Savannah"—she's the tyrant of the school. But, even though she fusses because the girls hoh their hair in the halls, or move the chairs from the living room, or leave their shoes under the heds, Salem can't do without her.

Sugar Bread

The delicious brown bread served every Saturday night for dinner. The hikers eat two pieces, while the less active students eat one piece (for Sunday morning breakfast in the room).

Salem Museum

A rare collection of antiquities, so characteristic of a particular people, cannot be found which can compare with the treasures of the Historical Building.

Mr. Burrage

Few colleges are lucky enough to have a genius around to do any sort of work. Mr. Burrage can do anything, from inventing washing machines to hanging curtains in the Chemistry Laboratory.

Weaver

Weaver is here, there, and everywhere, ready to do what "Miss Anna" orders. She could never accomplish all her work were it not for Weaver's assistance. And when "Miss Anna's" voice is heard down the hall, calling, "Who said to move that table out in the other room? Bring it back in here again, and then go get your broom," everyone knows that Weaver is on the job.

Class Day

Every class looks forward with gladness, yet backward with sadness, upon what is termed Class Day. It marks the last formal meeting of the seniors before they become alumnæ. All meetings and exercises of the day are in charge of the Senior Class. The friends of the class are invited to the service in which the history and prophecy of the class are presented.

Transfer of Caps and Gowns

Just before the members of the graduating class depart finally from seniorhood, they must hand over to the incoming seniors their caps and gowns. During the few short hours the juniors have a taste of what it means to be a stately senior. In their anxiety to make known the advancement in learning, these new seniors ride through the city, visiting the points of interest.

Culver Hall

Culver Hall is the dignified name given to the Sisters' House. It is one of the oldest buildings in Salem, and for many years has been the home of "the Sisters." For the past few years. Culver Hall has been the place where all the "left-overs' room, and this building must assuredly be at the top, for there's always room for one more occupant!

The Alumnae Record

A magazine full of news published by the alumnæ of Salem, telling something of the accomplishments and whereabouts of former students.

Cut System

Not a practice of biology students only, but popular with all young women in Salem College. This is a system which allows a certain number of excused absences from each class.

Hikes

Why should Salem girls be served with plenty of good food at dinner on Saturday evening? Salem girls walk on Saturday afternoon for such reasons as seeing the town and country, getting points, falling off, and gaining.

Senior Dinner

At commencement time the seniors have a dinner party. This occasion is the last at which the seniors are together, and it is then that they tell all their secrets. And the most interesting part of all comes when the girls who are going to get married within a year run around the table. Sometimes one is greatly surprised when certain girls who have never been suspected of matrimonial intentions run around the table, and oftentimes one is surprised within the year when some of the girls who did run around are still "running around," single!

THE COFFEE POT

Juniors Ringing the Bell

The juniors see no use in having Mr. Tally and Mr. Burrage, for they think that they have to do all the work at Salem. By far the worst tradition that has been handed down at Salem is the one stating that the juniors shall ring the bell. When a girl is seen running through the halls, looking neither to the right nor to the left, one knows at a glance that she's on her way to Main Hall to ring the bell on time. And if she, by any chance, forgets—woe be unto her!

Ivy Planting

This occasion is one which stands out plainly among the traditions of Salem. At chapel service, on the day when this ceremony is to take place, the seniors, their sister class, and marshals all appear, wearing miniature pennants, made in the colors of the class, and hearing the class motto and numerals. All those interested in the service gather around the spot where the seniors have decided to plant ivy. A beautiful and impressive ceremony takes place, and the ivy and trees are living memorials to the outgoing Senior Class.

Daisy Chain

This is one of the prettiest, oldest, and most unique customs of Salem. There is no more impressive sight than the seniors carrying the daisy chain over their shoulders, as they march down the aisle on the day of their final graduating exercises.

Cuffee Pot

The Coffee Pot is not a Tea Room, as its name implies. Neither is it the place where walking limits end, as it is usually known to Salem girls. It is the place that is known as the dividing line between Salem and Winston. The Coffee Pot is a unique marking, which is in keeping with the rest of Salem.

Office Building

A very important building from which come the necessary notices from the president's office, the necessary bills from the treasurer's office, and the necessary books from the book store. However, some think that the whole thing is unnecessary.

THE FACULTY

We can say that they form an isosceles triangle, with Mr. Heath as vertex and Miss Taylor and Miss Pfohl the equal angles,

Mr. Heath is-well, we can't exactly say what he means to us, so we will put it this way: he holds the key first, to our units, and then, to our graduation. Without his sage counsel we could never reach our destiny.

Miss Taylor is absolutely essential to our existence here, for without her we could never attain the dignity of seniorhood, and without her we could never hope to possess the coveted diploma.

As for Miss Pfohl, it is hard to express the love and appreciation we owe her, so this book will have to bear sufficient record of her invaluable service.

Margaret Wooten

Making speeches in chapel is not as simple as it looks. The fact that Margaret can do it with perfect ease is sufficient proof that she is a fine girl. But orations are not her only accomplishment—she is a splendid student, interested in athletics, and a good, all-round girl.

MABEL ANGEL

How do you do it, Mabel? We ask the question with envy, for Mabel seems to be the only one who really has the knack of studying. We can apply the old saying about "Silver speech and golden silence" to Mabel, with special emphasis on the "silence."

RUTH ALSPAUGH

We wonder what Ruth is thinking about, for that is what she seems to be doing most of the time. Ruth has long been a student at Salem and the Class of '25 is proud to claim her. She is not always serious, however, but makes a jolly companion at any time.

Martha Bowden

Who could feel blue when Martha is near? Her cheery smile and winning ways endear her to us all. We wonder what her future career will be—whether she will be a pianist, a singer, or a dancer, or a combination of all three.

CAM BOREN

Cam has never been heard to say "No" to any request made of her, and we know she can be counted on at all times. We are all proud of Cam, for she lives up to our senior standards, and although she pursues us with Annual bills, we like her just the same.

ALICE CARMICHAEL

Superlatives just can't be avoided when Alice is discussed, for Alice is superlative herself. She possesses one of those fascinating personalities that puts the owner on perfect terms with the whole world. Alice, among her many charms, is past master of the art of being entertaining, and last, but not least, who doesn't envy those curls?

LUCY COX

If Lucy spent half the time with us which she spends uptown, she might give us a chance to become acquainted with her. As it is, only a few can claim to really know her. She is very unselfish, and always willing to help others. We hope that this won't be the last we hear of her.

ELIZABETH CROUSE

"Lib" is always a good sport, but, best of all, she is a true friend. If we chose to be poetic, it might be said, "None knew her but to love her, none named her but to praise." But before we get too poetic we will just say the Class of '25 is proud to claim her, and we often wonder why there are not more girls like her,

EDITH FAGGE

Artistic and musical ability are combined in Edith. In addition, she has innate refinement and a sweet disposition. She is never angry. She is a "spirit still and hright, with something of an angel light."

Genevieve Jackson

We feel quite sure that we have a genius in our midst when we read some of the wonderful things Genevieve writes. They say all great things come from those who talk little but think a great deal, so we are expecting great things from Genevieve.

ELIZABETH HARRINGTON

"Lizzie" is almost a landmark at Salem, and the Class of '25 is proud to own her. Although she is careful in choosing her friends, she is popular with many. She is a conscientious student, with lots of class spirit. Ray! Rah! "Lizzie!"

HELEN JOHNSON

Helen is a paradox—a studious athlete. She has made both varsities, soccer and volleyball, and yet has a report card that looks like a Palmer drill of the letter "A". In addition, she is quite an accomplished musician. The Class of '25 wishes success to one of its most talented members.

MARY ELIZABETH JOHNSON

What wouldn't we give for Mary's hair and eyes! She is our chief exhibit in the line of beauty, and the old saying, "Pretty is as pretty does," runs true in this case, for Mary's personality is as charming as her appearance. Whenever we see her with her "specs" on, we know she is either pondering over the Annual or Spanish—one seems as hard as the other, though we know she'll succeed in both.

BARBARA HEATH

"Bob" has been a loyal member of '25 since its freshman days, and the more we see of her, the more we want to see, which is quite a compliment. Her greatest virtue, in our eyes, is her sense of humor, which has enlivened many a class. She is one of our special exhibits in the line of brilliance, and we are sure the Einstein theory and the Fourth Dimension don't puzzle her a bit.

ANNE HAIRSTON

"To be awake is to be alive" applies to Anne, for she is alive in every sense of the word. She leads a well-rounded life, for she is not only studious, but also athletic. Everyone loves Anne, for she is true blue. We all wonder how the Academy will get along without her.

MONTE BLALOCK

A clever person is Monte—always ready with repartee. It did not take us long to realize that she was not only a good sport, but also a splendid student. If she puts her faculties to as good use as she seems capable of doing, we are sure that she will have a brilliant future.

WILMA KIRBY

Our class baby, and just sophisticated enough is Wilma. She possesses a charming personality, friendly manner, and in addition to being a very good student, she has that rare quality which the French call "chic." Suffice it to say that Wilma is always well jack-ed up.

PEARL FISHEL

Pearl is a hasketball star of first magnitude; neither our athletics nor other school activities will be successful without her coöperation. If we did not know there was something behind them we might he led to believe that those eyes could take her through life. She is loved by everyone, and just because she is Pearl.

ROZELIND LANDQUIST

We sometimes envy Rozelind and all her W. S. H. S's, but then we realize that we can't all he popular, so we are glad she is. Besides, she has won a name for herself in the Domestic Science Lab. making good things to eat. We all think this will turn out to be a most interesting combination.

RUTH MARSDEN

Ruth's report card certainly has no variableness—at least we have no record of it; thus far it has beeen "A, A, A," and we have sufficient proof that it will continue to be. Besides, we know Ruth as an organist, pianist, music teacher, a Sunday school teacher, and she is known to be efficient in all of these.

KATHLEEN PARRISH

"Kat" is as good-natured and jolly as the day is long; just when lessons seem most impossible she says something to make life pure sunshine again. The Class of '25 would be incomplete without "Kat," for she has been with us for four long years. If she thinks as much of us as we do of her, we certainly do feel flattered.

BROWNIE PEACOCK

No—she is not a bit vain, as one might judge by her name—far from it. But if she were, we could almost forgive her, as she certainly has ample cause; for, aside from her scholastic ability, she is quite a pianist. It is said, "Music hath charms to sooth the savage breast," and while we haven't reached that stage yet, we certainly do like to hear her play.

ELIZABETH RONDTHALER

It is almost impossible to find a suitable word which will sum up all of "Lib's" splendid characteristics. She has a cheery disposition, a sense of humor, a friendly word for all, and a fine character. We feel sure that in time she will become "a perfect woman, nobly planned, to warn, to comfort, and command."

LINDA SMITH

We are all fond of vacation, but Linda takes it when she pleases. We missed her while she was away, but she has been with us long enough to show her "stuff"; she is a good typist, and a much better friend.

Dallas Sink

We have evidence of the fact that Dallas does not sink, for she has conquered all the obstacles on the way to the Senior Class, and now that she is here, we wish her luck. Dallas is cheerful, friendly, and seems to accept everything with a smile.

Senior Class

GRACE SHEETS

"Still waters run deep." Grace, coming to us in the last year, with her serene qualities, has proven herself a true friend of the class. Her quietness and conscientiousness have won for her many friends.

MARION WALL

Marion is always happy and smiling. You can hear her cheery voice in the bluest of hours. Thus it is needless to say what an addition to our class we consider her. Although she has been with us for a very short time, we are all agreed that the more we know her, the better we like her.

RACHEL WOLFF

There are two things we like about Rachel, especially—her smiles, that we never fail to see, and the fried chicken that she brings from home. She is always willing to share both with everybody. Sharply at ten she snaps off our lights, for she is none other than our dignified monitor, who puts us to bed and gets us up. Everybody likes to be with her, because she is a sure cure for the "blues."

LULA WYNNE

Lula is the possessor of a not unusual talent—
"the gift of gab." But it is not always of trivial matters that she speaks, and whenever her bright head and cheerful words appear upon the scene they drive the "blues" before them. Lula is one of our most attractive and lively girls.

Zaidee Dorough

Whenever we hear the Victrola playing and we want to find "Dash" she is sure to be tripping the light fantastic. "Dash" is not always dancing, however, for she has distinguished herself on the athletic field, and it is rumored that she is an authority on the subject of dates, both historical and—

Class Poem

On the great, wide sea of memory
Our friendships come and go;
Those which we moor with a cable are safe
Though the winds of adversity blow.

It cannot be broken, this cable strong,
Like a chain of iron it will hold;
And the anchor which holds this cable is love—
Love, more priceless than gold.

The links in this cable are cheerful words,
Unkind things left untold;
And the more of these, the stronger the chain,
And the firmer the anchor will hold.

The friendships which we have at Salem moored Have love for their anchor strong;
And so, no matter how rough the sea,
They are safe, though time be long.
D. D., '25.

Last Will and Testament

E, the Senior Class of Salem Academy, heing unsound and decrepit of mind, and visibly weak in memory, do hereby announce and declare this our last will and testament; revoking and cancelling each and every will made by us heretofore.

First, we desire that all debts, real and unreal, incurred by us during any preceding years should be paid in full by pawning our reputations, which we feel sure ought to bring a sufficiently high price to cover all our deficits.

Second, to the incoming Senior Class we leave our abundance of pep and "Salem Spirit," together with our loyalty and devotion to our Alma Mater.

Third, in view of the fact that it has taken us four long years to attain the heights of senior dignity, we do hereby will and bequeath to the faculty our absence, fully realizing the joy they will experience at our departure.

Fourth, I, Margaret Wooten, will my method of keeping thin to one Rebecca Harden, and my extreme responsibility to one Emily Tobey.

Fifth, I, Anne Hairston, will my classical features to one Emma Mallonee, in hopes that they will gain as much admiration for her as they have for me.

Sixth, 1, Genevieve Jackson, hequeath my harsh voice to Mary McClure.

Seventh, 1, Elizabeth Rondthaler, bequeath my studious ability and natural quietness to one Lucy Baldwin, who so pitifully lacks both.

Eighth, I, Ruth Marsden, will and bequeath my position as class dumhbell to Elizabeth Marx. Ninth, I, Rachel Wolff, will my permanent restriction to one Lillian Lowell, who seems unable to keep in.

Tenth, I, Mable Angle, bequeath my vampish disposition to William Mims.

Eleventh, we, the Senior class, affectionately bequeath our dear Miss Davis, together with all her implements of torture, to Mr. Mac Brown, in the hope that her "latinity" will greatly enhance his domicile.

Twelfth, to our dear sister class, the ninth grade, we affectionately bequeath our exceptional ability in Algebra, which we are sure will be of great help to them. For further particulars, apply to Miss Davenport.

Thirteenth, to Mr. Heath we leave our tired and worn-out faculty, with whom he will be privileged to lambast the incoming classes in the seclusion of his office.

Fourteenth, to Miss Taylor, our class teacher, we leave our thanks and grateful appreciation for her kind and efficient leadership during the past years.

Fifteenth, to Mrs. Herndon we leave our latest invention, an automatic restricter, with our love and best wishes for her future success.

Sixteenth, and last, to Dr. Rondthaler, we leave our sincere good wishes for the successful future of our beloved Salem Academy.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal, this 30th day of May, 1925, A. D.

BARBARA HEATH, Testator,

Signed, sealed, declared, and published by the Senior Class of Salem Academy as their last will and testament, in the presence of us who, at their request, and in the presence of each other, do hereunto subscribe our names as witnesses.

MARY JOHNSON, Editor-in-Chief. CAM BOREN, Business Manager, MARGARET WOOTEN, President of the Senior Class.

Class History

VOLUTION has been defined as the act or process of evolving—i. e., changing. Moreover, the word means development, or growth, whether it be along physical or mental lines, or, in the case of a schoolgirl, along both. One of the most interesting instances of evolution is this very same bit of humanity—the happy, care-free, attractive schoolgirl.

There came to Salem Academy in the fall of 1921 a girl—just an ordinary, every-day girl, but a little more excited than the ordinary girl, and even a bit more bewildered by her strange surroundings. At home she was the idol of any adoring family, but at Salem she was just one among many as bewildered and excited as she. After the first strangeness had worn off and the routine of classes had begun, she was quite proud to belong to the Freshnan Class and to claim friendship with the members. She thrilled inwardly and outwardly over everything, and most of all when one of the older girls showed her the slightest bit of attention.

She had never known responsibility, and it was quite a shock to find that no one picked up her books, made her bed, or even waited dinner for her. Why worry about such things when she could be playing basketball or going to the drug store? Basketball was such fun, and while it was a disappointment not to make the team, she could cheer with the loudest and feel sure that her cheers had helped to win the game.

Class elections brought suspense and new thrills. She had secretly aspired to an office and had already planned the letter she would write home. The fact that she bore her disappointment bravely and coöperated cheerfully with the winners of those enviable positions proved that she was no longer the self-centered girl who came to Salem.

Needless to say, she was a little homesick at Thanksgiving, but by counting the days, hours, and minutes until Christmas, she became light-hearted again.

The spring term brought with its hard work many social festivities, the most enjoyable of which were the picnic at Old Town and the party for the juniors at Lybrook Farm.

The joys of the summer caused her to forget the hard examinations, and when she returned in the fall she took advantage of the fact that she was an old girl and a sophomore, and lorded it over the freshmen, forgetting how bewildered she had been.

She was thrilled when she made her class volleyball team, and thrilled again when her team won. With fear and trembling Christmas she boarded the train for home, for she had bobbed her hair. What would her family say?

Basketball practice began soon after her return, and every spare moment was spent on the basketball court. But when spring came even sports lost their fascination. The sophomores entertained the seniors, and to be hostesses to such celebrities required much dignity. She played her part well, because she still had that enthusiasm that never fails. That was a glorious ride to Dunlap Springs in the trucks, and quite a supper had been prepared for them. They showed the seniors that the sophomore class knew how to do things just right.

As a climax to the year, Miss Taylor, who had been elected class teacher, gave a beautiful party on the back campus.

Summer came once more and our Salem girl went home and told her family gleefully that the next year would find her a junior. How important that sounded! All kinds of changes were to be noted in her, for she was growing up. Although she was just as happy and had just as much fun, she entered upon a year of hard work with a seriousness of purpose that was new to her.

All year they were busy making money for the crowning event of their social life, the dinner for the seniors at the Robert E. Lee, and it was quite worth all their efforts. Even the events of their senior year could not eclipse the grandeur of that banquet.

And so at last this class of which our Salem girl was a member attained the dignity of seniorhood. It had taken hard work, but it had been fun, nevertheless, and all the memories which remained were happy ones. They say that men are just boys grown up, and with equal truth one may say that seniors are just freshmen grown up a little. Of course, on public occasions, she, as a senior, carried herself with all the stateliness which her position demanded, but if those freshmen could have seen her when she was with others of her class, they would have seen that she still had a large share of lightheadedness which might be repressed but would never be destroyed.

In athletics these seniors were fortunate enough to taste both the sweetness of victory and the bitterness of defeat, for they won the volleyball game but were vanquished on the soccer field. The Thanksgiving banquet was quite as enjoyable as usual-perhaps even a little more so-and the Christmas holidays were beyond description. During mid-term examinations and the long spring term they stayed and played and were both sad and gay. Gay that vacation days were coming; sad that so many of them would have to say a real good-bye to Salem and to Miss Taylor, who for three years had been their class teacher and sincere friend. The juniors entertained for them and made that day a memorable one for our senior and her sisters.

At last commencement came, and the Academy Class of 1925 received their diplomas. Although there were few of those white-gowned girls who realized the fact, each of them had changed, for they had attained, in a measure, the maturity and dignity of womanhood.

Class Prophecy

June 4, 1935.

EAR RUTH: Well, at last my dream is to be realized, and the long-coveted trip abroad is to be mine. Only two short days, and I will sail, bound for points all round the world. I arrived bere in New York last night, and having decided to see all the old Salem girls that I could on this trip, I went today to see Kathleen Parrish and Rozelind Lanquist at their studio in Greenwich Village. "Kat" is quite a famous artist now, and Rozelind is much in demand as an artist's model. When I left them I called a taxi, and who should be at the wheel but Lucy Cox! She is succeeding wonderfully well in a financial way, and says that the unusual life of "chauffeurette" pleases her much better than a more commonplace profession. I climbed onto the seat with her and she drove me out to one of the suburbs of the city, where Martba Bowden and Anne Hairston are living. They have a lovely apartment, and Martha is still trying to decide which of two men to marry, while Anne works laboriously over a book she is writing, called "The Care and Feeding of Babies." Anne says she is a confirmed old maid, but I have my doubts.

WEDNESOAY .- Whom do you think I met on the street today? Lula Wynne! She is spending her honeymoon here, and of course I had to be introduced to her husband and told all about the wedding. I didn't even know she had been married-fancy that! Anyway, they are going to spend a few weeks here and then settle down out in California. It seems that they are to he near Mary Johnson. She's quite a famous movie star now and is extremely popular in Hollywood, as well as being even more beautiful than ever. Lula and I had a delightful chat about our old classmates. She told me that Rachel Wolff had at last developed a sylphlike figure and that she was conducting a splendid reducing class in some Southern city. Helen Johnson, she informed me, has a six months' engagement with Keitb's as a tight-rope walker. I can't exactly imagine Helen in such a role, but I know she would make a success at anything she undertook. We had both heard of Cam Boren's engagement and what a round of parties and gaieties were being given in her honor, and also of Linda Smith's success in her business career. Perhaps you knew that Helen Bailey is the society editor of one of the big Chicago papers and is very much interested in her work. And Barbara Heath still has the faculty of "standing in" with her instructors at the university where she is studying law. I am so glad that some of our old classmates are still at Salem.

Brownie Peacock teaches music there and bids fair to make a second Dean Shirly, while Ruth Marsgen has entire charge of the Latin department. Lula and I were loath to part, but as it was growing late, we bade each other good-bye. I simply cannot realize that I am on my way to Europe. The only flaw in my trip is that you are not here to enjoy it with me, but of course you would not leave your work. I should have known, even back in the days of good old Salem, that you would teach domestic science—and in Florida, too!

And now, I've another surprise, for whom do you think are right here on the boat with me? Elizabeth Harrington and Marion Wall! Lizzie, as you know, was married soon after she left the Academy, and you can't imagine how happy I was when I met her on the ship. We simply fell into each other's arms. She introduced me to her two little sons, whom she is taking with her to Europe on a pleasure trip. I am so glad that we can be together once again. Marion, I learned tonight, bids fair to be the belle o' the boat, as she is quite a social butterfly and has traveled widely. She speaks casually of "running over to France" and "spending the winter abroad," and I feel that my hard-earned voyage is quite trivial when I hear this sophisticated woman of the world. Nevertheless, she is just as cordial as ever, and we had a long talk together. She said that she saw Zaidee Dorough the last time she was on the Mediterranean. Dash married a missionary to Africa and she and her husband were taking a vacation. She says that Dash is intensely interested in their work, and that the natives are very fond of her, but, somehow or other, I can't connect Dash and missionaries—can you?

LONDON, JULY 10.—We arrived in Liverpool two weeks ago and you can imagine just how honored I felt when I saw that the American Ambassador to England and his wife were down at the dock to meet me, or rather, us. It was Elizabeth Rondthaler, and let me tell you, her high position has not changed her one bit, for she is just as charming as ever. She entertained us delightfully while we were in England, and it was with much regret that we left her. She told me that Pearl Fishel is happily married and is living on a ranch in Texas. She said also that Mabel Angel had made quite a fortune from some kind of mechanical device which she invented, and that Dallas Sink was making a lecture tour of the States for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. I don't see how in the world she manages to keep in touch with so many of the old girls.

PARIS, JULY 12.—Paris at last! And with it, some more of our old chums. Edith Fagge is studying art here and when I went out to her studio in the Latin quarter, I found not only Edith, but also Genevieve Jackson. It seems that Genevieve is still pursuing her musical career in Berlin, and had come down to spend her vacation with her old friend. Edith told me that Genevieve was an accomplished violinist now, but was not yet satisfied with her work. Margaret Wooten is truly a second Pavlowa. She is making a dancing tour of Europe, and tonight I went to see her performance. After it was over I went around and spoke to her, and I found the same old carefree Margaret. We had a delightful dinner together and discussed many of our classmates and school days at Salem.

I saw Wilma Kirby before I left, and she is married to a devoted husband and is living in North Carolina.

I got a lovely letter today from Elizabeth Crouse. You remember how much patience she used to have? Well, she is conducting a kindergarten in Winston now, and they say the children are very fond of her.

Ruth Alspaugh is teaching in a school in Arizona, and she tries extremely hard to teach the little Mexicans how to be "the good American," as well as their A B C's. Alice Carmichael, I learned from Margaret, is doing splendid settlement work in the slums of San Francisco. It seems that she married a wealthy broker there, and is now using her money to help others.

Ruth, do forgive me for making this letter so long, but I knew that you would be just as interested in our old classmates as I am. Write me often and always tell me any chance piece of news which you can glean about the dear old Salem girls. I do so want to keep in touch with them.

Love always,

MONTE.

Athletics

We spell Athletics with a capital "A" at Salem, but we don't stop at spelling it. Our school year is an endless cycle of baseball, soccer, volteyball, basketball, tennis, and swimming, with the two banquets for the high lights. From the first volleyball practice, early in the autumn, until the last baseball game and track meet, late in the spring, excitement and enthusiasm run high.

Athletics in the Salem way is synonymous with pep, coöperation, some hard work, and plenty of fun.

Basketball

If lemons and mascots can win a game, there ought to be no defeats at Salem, for there is always a good supply of both at the basketball game.

Basketball at Salem is an all-year-round sport. After our strenuous mental labor, an hour or two of physical enjoyment makes Salem girls healthy and happy. And oh! those thrilling games! It is surprising that the roof of the gym is still where it belongs, for the cheers given beneath it have been loud enough to cause any ordinary roof to take its departure.

Miss our basketball games and you are missing one-third of Salem's fun!

Soccer

Soccer has made quite a hit at Salem, even if it did not establish itself here until 1923. Aside from all bruised knees and scraped shins, soccer is one of the most enjoyable sports one can find.

Last year the teams were matched very evenly, the final game tieing with a score of nothing to nothing. This year we hope the teams to be even better prepared, since we will not have to waste our energy in climbing the hill to practice. Our new soccer field has just been completed; and, although some players will probably miss the persimmon tree on the old one, they may be able to find some other means of refreshing themselves.

With Dr. Rondthaler as time-keeper, an interested coach, and an impartial umpire, we are certain to have an exciting game. I am sure that the big "S" in Salem must stand for soccer, too.

At Salem volley ball is synonymous with vim, vigor, and pep. To play volley ball all these qualities are required, and every girl who came out possessed them in full measure. Did you see the final Academy game? If not, you missed one of the finest and fairest games old Salem has ever seen. Why won't you be one of the girls next year to show "Salem spirit," and come out for this thrilling sport?

The Gloom Chasers

"There was a sound of revelry by night." Byron had not met the Gloom Chasers, but we are tempted to think he had them in mind. We began our career as an antidote for the "blues" with a reception to the faculty, at which Dr. Rondthaler distinguished himself as a marksman with the populu.

Our emblem is the optimistic sunflower, and our purpose is to cheer up Salem. Judging from the membership, which consists of the entire student body of the Academy, our success is more than assured.

From seven until nine-thirty South Hall rings with merriment. Do you doubt that the Gloom Chasers will last through many Saturday nights?

If you want information concerning the latest literature, go to the Book Club, for they are making it their business to find out about the new books. They meet once a week and read together and they are learning that the best way to come to a true estimate of the worth of a piece of fiction is to hear it read aloud. They have no other purpose than that of entertainments, but they are not adverse to gaining a little information "on the side." Unlike most clubs, there are no dues, no officers, and no business; with these three items lacking, one can easily imagine that their meetings are one hundred per cent enjoyable.

Six o'clock Sunday evening marks the hour when the Academy girls assemble in the living room of South Hall for Y. W. The Y. W. C. A. is the only religious organization we have, and boasts one hundred per cent attendance at every meeting.

Our Y. W., however, does not restrict itself to these Sunday meetings. During the week the Y. W. store is kept, at which the girls may buy refreshments. This store, as you can easily imagine, has a large patronage, and the proceeds are used to send two delegates to Montreat every summer to the Young People's Conference.

The purpose of the Y. W. C. A. is the promotion of love, unselfish service, and spiritual life among the girls.

Miss Davenport: "Margaret, what is an affected quadratic equation?"

Margaret: "I suppose it's one that has a disease or something."

Freshman: "Is Helen Hall a dormitory?"

THE MODERN GIRL

Miss Osborne: "Shall I teach you how to make doughtnuts?"

May: "Yes, I'm terribly interested, but I can't quite understand how you fix the inner tubes,"

Jim: "Charles, I joined an insurance order last night, and it's fine."

Charles: "What kind of insurance order?"

Jim: "Well, I pay a dollar a week as long as I live, and I get two dollars a week as long as I'm dead."

It was with considerable astonishment that the manager of a Minneapolis shoe store watched his new clerk, a tall Swede, deliberately throw a new pair of shoes into the wastebasket.

"What is the matter with those shoes?" asked the manager.

"Dey ain't any good," replied the clerk.

"How do you know?"

"I han try 'em on half dozen fellers and dey wouldn't fit none of them."—Exchange

In a World of Girls Clothes Are So Important

Every Freshman learns that while clothes do not make the girl, they do make an enormous difference in her enjoyment of college life. Other things being equal, it's the well-dressed girl who is admitted first to the innermost chummy circles and is "in" on all the "Sosnik & Sosnik offer you correct, distinctive costumes that go a long way in making popularity and in individualizing your personality in the minds of both students and faculty.

We invite you to inspect our frocks for evening wear. Special attention will be given to girls selecting costumes for graduation.

MIXED ZOOLOGY

The hard-working storekeeper had vainly tried to please the old lady who wanted to purchase a present for her granddaughter. For the fifteenth time she critically examined a neat little satchel.

"Are you sure this is a genuine alligator skin?"

"Positively madam. I shot that alligator myself."

"It looks rather soiled."

"That, madam, is where it struck the ground when it fell off the tree."

HONOR FIRST

Louise, aged five, was in the library with her father. His attention was attracted by a scratching sound, and he looked up to find her at work with a pair of scissors on the top of a polished table.

"Louise," he said sternly, "go tell your mother what you've been doing!"

"I won't do it, daddy," she answered. "Do you think I'm a tattletale?"
